SMALL ISLAND DEVELOPING STATES TECHNICAL COOPERATION PROGRAMME

to be conducted by

DHI WATER & ENVIRONMENT (S) PTE LTD

Singapore Cooperation Programme

Singapore has provided technical assistance to other developing countries since the 1960s. As a country whose only resource is its people, Singapore believes that human resource development is vital for economic and social progress. Singapore itself has benefited from training provided by other countries and international organisations.

In 1992, the Singapore Cooperation Programme (SCP) was established to bring together under one framework the various technical assistance programmes offered by Singapore. Through the SCP, the range and number of training programmes were increased to share Singapore's development experience with other developing countries.

To date, Singapore has sponsored training courses and study visits for over 100,000 officials from more than 170 countries. The SCP is managed by the Technical Cooperation Directorate of the Singapore Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

DHI Water & Environment (S) Pte Ltd

DHI is an independent research and consultancy organisation. In Singapore, DHI has had more than 10 years of experience in the planning and environmental monitoring and management of dredging and reclamation projects. DHI also provides consultancy services to a wide spectrum of local and international private firms by combining extensive physical, chemical and biological knowledge with the most advanced numerical tools and technologies available.

For almost 50 years, DHI has trained professionals in a range of disciplines related to solving challenges in water environments. Launched in 2012, the DHI Academy has also partnered various universities and knowledge institutions to provide training packages that build capacity in knowledge on sustainable water management to address the challenges in water environments.

Course Objectives

This course aims to provide an understanding of the impact of man's activities on the marine environment and discuss sustainable approaches for better management of marine resources and biodiversity conservation.

Participants will learn how to formulate opinions about ocean-related environmental issues and how to competently and effectively manage the oceans and marine resources.

Synopsis

The 5-day course will allow participants to gain a better understanding of Singapore's coral reefs conservation. This will help participants to understand the challenges of environmental protection and marine management in their own national context.

Topics to be covered include:

- United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea on the conservation and sustainable use of marine biodiversity.
- Ecosystem services.
- Human activities and their influence on nutrient cycle and algae bloom.
- Modelling tools for effective marine resources monitoring and management.
- Environmental impact programmes.
- Marine biodiversity conservation.
- Climate change and the seas.
- Forecast system for the seas.
- Sustainable use of marine natural resources.

Methodology

A variety of teaching methodologies will be used throughout the course to ensure active learning and participation including classroom-style lectures, group discussions and hands-on exercises. Relevant site visits around Singapore will also be included to enhance the learning experience of the participants.

Duration

The course will be held from 3 to 7 July 2017.
