Global Infrastructure Development Scholarship Program (GIDSP)

The Global Infrastructure Development Scholarship Program (GIDSP) funded by the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport (MOLIT) in Korea is designed to support Graduate Studies Program for government officials working in infrastructure development or related fields in partner countries of Korea.

The main goal of GIDSP is to support the training of key personnel who have the capacity to lead the sustainable physical development of Korea's partner countries through the transfer of Korea's know-how and experiences in infrastructure development.

The MOLIT launched the program with the International Contractors Association of Korea (ICAK), expecting to contribute to the capacity-building in infrastructure development of partner countries by allowing the participants to experience Korea's development process, acquire specialized knowledge in the field of infrastructure and physical development through intensive training, and strengthen the ability for infrastructure planning & management.

The program will make its best effort to support participants of GIDSP not only in expanding their knowledge of infrastructure development, but also in establishing valuable networks with scholars and professionals in Korea while experiencing Korean culture, society and

Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport (MOLIT) in Korea

The Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport (MOLIT) was a cabinet-level division of the government of South Korea. The ministry was originally the Ministry of Construction and Transportation.

A country's land should serve as a home for the people. Bearing this in mind, the ministry seeks more balanced territorial development with a focus on fostering innovation cities, along with other regions into real growth hubs. Through the so-called "New Deal for Urban Renewal", the goal is to improve the quality of life, create jobs, and secure future growth engines.

The ministry also tacks abnormal business practices to create industry conditions that help promote the mutual sustenance between operators and workers, thereby sharpening the competitive edge for the industry and improving the quality of jobs countrywide.

With regards to transportation services, the ministry is committed to better serving the public interest. Rather than viewing the state-run institution only from a profitability-oriented perspective, the ministry emphasizes the fundamental value of the public services for the people.

International Contractors Association of Korea (ICAK)

The International Contractors Association of Korea (ICAK) was established in 1976 as the nation's only promotion agency for the overseas construction industry. The main function of the ICAK is to facilitate Korean contractors' overseas business and to develop the industry as a whole.

The ICAK assists its 836 member companies in exploring overseas market, developing projects, and negotiating contracts. It also works to increase cooperation and understanding between the Korean construction industry and those of other nations.

As the nation's only think tank specialized in the overseas construction industry, the ICAK keeps abreast of important changes and developments in the world construction market. The ICAK also maintains important functions such as research & policy development, information service, plant project development & assistance, project appraisal & risk management, and education. In addition, the ICAK promotes bilateral and multilateral international cooperation, such as joint surveys on markets, information and personnel exchanges, and on-the-job training for key partner countries.

It is also the 600-year capital of Korea, a historical city with social, cultural, and physical layers spread out along a vast and complex landscape. The character of the university, academic programs, and research institutions is shaped by Seoul's metropolitan dynamic. Its faculty, students, and administrative body are distinguished by a commitment to civic values and a dynamic urban civilization. Along with basic research, it functions as a think-tank in formulating and supporting the major policy goals of the Seoul Metropolitan Government. With diverse and specific programs that integrate research and policy, practice and education, the University of Seoul seeks a balance between academic and professional concerns, between visionary goals and practical research.

The University of Seoul has set a clear goal of becoming an international center for the urban sciences. These range from environmental and civic engineering, architecture, urban planning and landscape design to public law and administration, taxation science, economics, urban sociology and management. More recently, the university has diversified this base to include the arts and humanities. In the area of science and engineering, the university has concentrated on the development of information and media technology. With Korea's largest and finest group of human and informational resources focused on the future of the world's city, it boasts a unique array of research institutions working on the solutions to its problems and creative visions for its future.

2. INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL OF URBAN SCIENCES (ISUS)

The International School of Urban Sciences (ISUS) of the University of Seoul (UOS) was launched in Spring 2013 in an effort to contribute to the development of sustainable urban communities in the world through an interdisciplinary program of teaching, research, and outreach. ISUS offers two graduate programs in global construction management and sustainable urban & regional development. The two-year graduate degree programs seek to provide an interdisciplinary, engaged learning environment in which students from various fields acquire the knowledge and professional skills necessary for becoming leading practitioners in the field of environment policy and sustainable development.

In addition to the regular graduate programs, ISUS created the International Urban Development Program (IUDP) in cooperation with partner agencies and institutions in order to share Korea's achievement in urban and regional development with scholars and practitioners from the world. Currently, IUDP offers the Seoul Case Study Program in partnership with several world renowned public administration and public policy schools in the U.S., and England. The one-week field study program provides graduate students from partner universities with a unique opportunity to learn the best practices of Seoul in various urban administration and development areas. Each year, IUDP also invites about 20 government officials from Seoul's global partner cities for a master degree program, Master of Urban Administration and Planning (MUAP). The MUAP program, sponsored by Seoul Metropolitan Government is designed for municipal government officials from Seoul's global partner cities to acquire academic and professional knowledge and skills that can help them work for the special challenges their home communities have been facing with. ISUS developed another sponsored graduate degree program in Urban and Regional development (MURD) in partnership with the Korea International Cooperation Agency (KOICA) for government officials from KOICA's partner countries. Recently, ISUS has developed Master's program for Global Leaders in Environmental Policy (MGLEP), another sponsored graduate degree program, in partnership with the Korea Environmental Industry & Technology Institute (KEITI) for government officials from KEITI's partner countries. These sponsored graduate programs are expected to contribute to the sustainable urban development in key partner countries by providing the academic and professional skills necessary for their home countries.
