JICA Knowledge Co-Creation Program (KCCP)

The Japanese Cabinet released the Development Cooperation Charter in February 2015, stated that “In its development cooperation, Japan has maintained the spirit of jointly creating things that suit partner countries while respecting ownership, intentions and intrinsic characteristics of the country concerned based on a field oriented approach through dialogue and collaboration. It has also maintained the approach of building reciprocal relationships with developing countries in which both sides learn from each other and grow and develop together.” We believe that this ‘Knowledge Co-Creation Program’ will serve as a foundation of mutual learning process.

For What?

Background

The global outbreak of new coronavirus infection has triggered the dramatic increase in the digitization of economy and society throughout the international community.

The digital technology and use of data has become indispensable for the economic activities and social life, and is also expected to be the cost-effective means for the efforts to achieve SDGs.

However, the conventional ICT policies are said to be inadequate to address the multi-sectoral challenges and sometimes to lead to reduce the international competitiveness.

Objectives

To enhance the digital-related policy making capabilities by understanding the leading model cases in Japan and other countries, and analyzing the issues of participants' countries with the use of latest analysis frameworks.

To Whom?

Job Areas and Organizations

This program is designed for the section chief or personnel responsible for ICT and digital economy policy making in the related ministries, government agencies or municipal governments.

The applying organization with the best intention to utilize the opportunity of this program will be highly valued in the selection.

Targeted Countries

Bangladesh, Benin, Djibouti, Egypt, Gabon, Iran, Jordan, Liberia, Mauritius, Nepal, Nigeria, Pakistan, Peru, Philippines, Republic of North Macedonia, Rwanda, Samoa, Sri Lanka, Togo, Uganda

The Participants who have successfully completed the program will be awarded the certificate by JICA.

Where?

This course is carried out totally face-to-face in Japan, organized by JICA Tokyo Center.

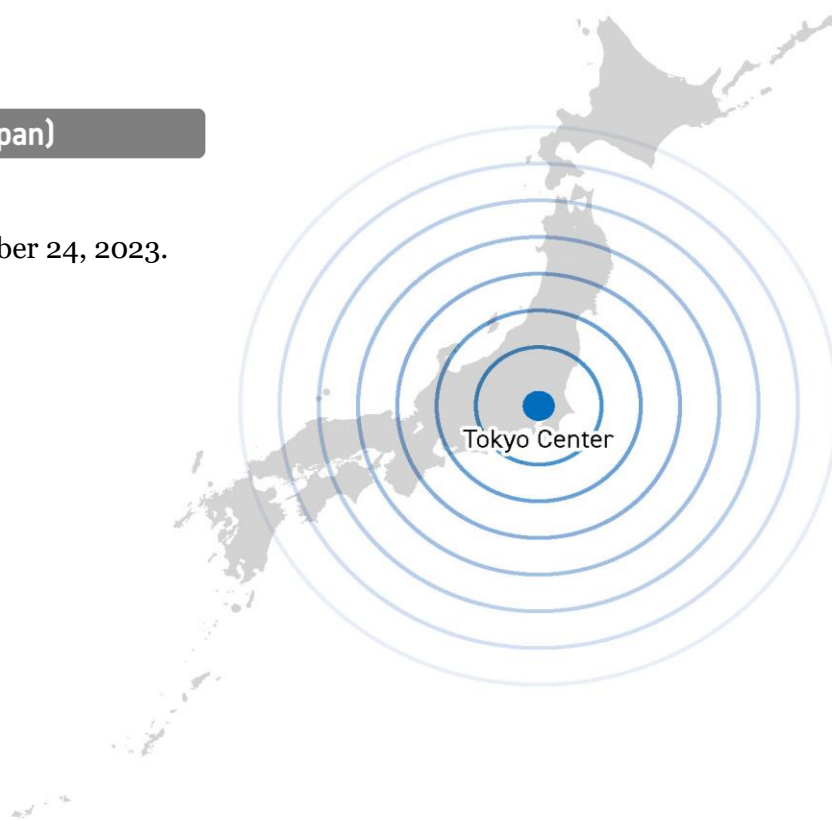

You can enjoy not only the learning experience with other participants from all over the world, but also the cultural one through your stay in Japan.

Program Officer (JICA)

Mr. NUNOYA Akira

Tokyo Center, Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA)

“It is no exaggeration to say that the rapid and smooth digitization will determine the future of economy and society in each country. Very welcome to join us at this program”

Senior Advisor (JICA)

Mr. YAMANAKA Atsushi

Office of STI/DX, Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA)

“Digital technologies are not panacea but could be leap-frogging tools. However, without having proper strategies, policies, and regulations, country cannot use the potential of digital technologies to their fullest. As such, responsibility of policy makers is critically important to make sure that the processes of digitization, digitalization, and digital transformation will be implemented appropriately and properly to realize digital for development in each country. I look forward to welcome to Japan to have an opportunity to share lessons-learned and best practices from each other.”

JICA and Capacity Development

Technical cooperation is people-to-people cooperation that supports partner countries in enhancing their comprehensive capacities to address development challenges by their own efforts. Instead of applying Japanese technology per se to partner countries, JICA's technical cooperation provides solutions that best fit their needs by working with people living there. In the process, consideration is given to factors such as their regional characteristics, historical background, and languages. JICA does not limit its technical cooperation to human resources development; it offers multi-tiered assistance that also involves organizational strengthening, policy formulation, and institution building.

Implementation methods of JICA's technical cooperation can be divided into two approaches. One is overseas cooperation by dispatching experts and volunteers in various development sectors to partner countries; the other is domestic cooperation by inviting participants from developing countries to Japan. The latter method is the Knowledge Co-Creation Program, formerly called Training Program, and it is one of the core programs carried out in Japan. By inviting officials from partner countries and with cooperation from domestic partners, the Knowledge Co-Creation Program provides technical knowledge and practical solutions for development issues in participating countries.

The Knowledge Co-Creation Program (Group & Region Focus) has long occupied an important place in JICA operations. About 400 pre-organized courses cover a wide range of professional fields, ranging from education, health, infrastructure, energy, trade and finance, to agriculture, rural development, gender mainstreaming, and environmental protection. A variety of programs is being customized by the different target organizations to address the specific needs, such as policy-making organizations, service provision organizations, as well as research and academic institutions. Some programs are organized to target a certain group of countries with similar developmental challenges.

Japanese Development Experience

Japan, as the first non-Western nation to become a developed country, built itself into a country that is free, peaceful, prosperous and democratic while preserving its tradition. Japan will serve as one of the best examples for our partner countries to follow in their own development.

From engineering technology to production management methods, most of the know-how that has enabled Japan to become what it is today has emanated from a process of adoption and adaptation, of course, has been accompanied by countless failures and errors behind the success stories.

Through Japan's progressive adaptation and application of systems, methods and technologies from the West in a way that is suited to its own circumstances, Japan has developed a storehouse of knowledge not found elsewhere from unique systems of organization, administration and personnel management to such social systems as the livelihood improvement approach and governmental organization. It is not easy to apply such experiences to other countries where the circumstances differ, but the experiences can provide ideas and clues useful when devising measures to solve problems.

JICA, therefore, would like to invite as many leaders of partner countries as possible to come and visit us, to mingle with the Japanese people, and witness the advantages as well as the disadvantages of Japanese systems, so that integration of their findings might help them reach their developmental objectives.

This information pertains to one of the JICA Knowledge Co-Creation Programs (Group & Region Focus) of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) implemented as part of the Official Development Assistance of the Government of Japan based on bilateral agreement between both Governments.
